In memoriam: Jane Hoffman Popovich

The alumna, philanthropist and former president of the USC Associates Board of Directors was a true Trojan who leaves the university with wonderful memories, says USC President Nikias

USC Trustee Jane Hoffman Popovich ’65, an accomplished businesswoman and philanthropist with a lifelong commitment to the university and the community, died Aug. 4 following a long battle with cancer. She was 72.  (continued on next page)
“My wife, Niki, and I will miss Jane deeply,” said USC President C. L. Max Nikias. “She was a close and caring friend, a good neighbor and, yes, a great Trojan. She has left all of us with so many wonderful memories at USC and in Sun Valley, that we will cherish them for the rest of our lives.”

Generous benefactors

Popovich and her husband, J. Kristoffer Popovich ’65, MBA ’70, have been longtime, generous volunteers and benefactors to USC, supporting many areas of the university, including the USC Marshall School of Business, the Keck School of Medicine of USC, and USC Athletics. Their giving, which encompasses more than $20 million in gifts and pledges, most recently included $4 million toward cancer research at USC Norris Comprehensive Cancer Center in June.

Popovich, who earned a bachelor’s degree from USC Marshall in 1965, was a proud supporter of business education at USC. She served as a trustee of the H. Leslie Hoffman and Elaine S. Hoffman Foundation, which made a lead gift of $5 million in 1992 toward construction of a technologically advanced facility for USC Marshall graduate programs. In recognition, the building was named Jane Hoffman and J. Kristoffer Popovich Hall.

“The USC Marshall community today mourns the loss of one of its most stalwart supporters and beloved leaders,” said James G. Ellis, the school’s dean. “Jane Popovich created a lasting legacy of optimism and conviction in the potential of our students to make the world a better place through leadership at home and across the globe. On a personal level, Gail and I have lost a dear friend whose radiant smile, curiosity and zest for life will be missed. Our thoughts are with Kris and the entire Popovich family.”

The Hoffman connection

Advancing the legacy of her parents, H. Leslie and Elaine S. Hoffman, was of paramount importance to Jane Popovich. Her parents were avid supporters of higher education in Los Angeles, which was a driving force for their decades-long support of USC – even though they didn’t attend the university. Two USC buildings bear the Hoffmans’ names: H. Leslie Hoffman Hall of Business Administration for her father, a 17-year member of the USC Board of Trustees and national committee chair of the university’s 1961 Master Plan; and Elaine Stevely Hoffman Medical Research Center on the USC Health Sciences Campus for her mother.

She joined the USC Board of Trustees in 1983. “Jane Popovich embodied Trojan Family ideals,” said John Mork ’70, MS ’12, chair of the USC Board of Trustees. “Like her parents before her, she was passionate about the capacity for higher education to change lives. Jane will be remembered for her legendary contributions to the Trojan Family. Her keen intellect, warm smile and giant heart will be missed but never forgotten.”

Awards and activities

Her longtime dedication to USC was recognized in 1997, when she received the Alumni Merit Award from the USC Alumni Association. One of 55 founding members of the USC Associates, she served as its president as well as on the USC Marshall Board of Leaders, and the board of Women of Troy. Her involvement extended to Town & Gown and its Junior Auxiliary, as well as membership on the USC Associates’ San Gabriel Valley Steering Committee.

Jane Popovich is survived by her husband, Kris, three daughters and sons-in-law – Kimberly and Robert Shepherd, Tricia and Michael Fink and Jennifer ’96 and Christopher Allen MBA ’09 – and eight grandchildren. A special tribute to her life will be held on campus in the fall.
A Message from Michele Dedeaux Engemann

It is a privilege to begin my service as the new President of the USC Associates Board of Directors. I am deeply honored to accept the leadership reins of the USC Associates from my dear friend, Jane Popovich. Jane and Kris’ Trojan Family philanthropic legacy has been an inspiration to Roger and me throughout the years. We all will miss Jane’s presence at USC events and her leadership in the Associates, but I vow to honor the Trojan values and strong foundation of this cherished organization she has passed on to me.

The USC Associates team has been busy over the summer, planning some dynamic programs throughout the Los Angeles area as well as in Scottsdale, South Bend, Berkeley, Boulder – and of course our “Trojans Take Back Troy” Crystal Cruise adventure from Athens through the Greek Isles to Istanbul, followed by a journey inland to Troy. I hope many of you will join us on the road as well as at the many programs scheduled on campus – including our most attended events, the famous USC Associates Picnics in Founders Park. A calendar of events is always available on the USC Associates website, and I invite you to check that site regularly as new events are added throughout the year.

One event I’m excited to attend is on September 4th, when we will dedicate the updated USC Associates membership wall in Associates Park. Not only will this be my first official event in my new role, but we will also celebrate more than 150 Associates who have joined or committed a new pledge to USC and upgraded their membership level over the past two years. This truly is a time to pause and celebrate these members – as well as to toast the nearly 3,000 members listed since our founding back in 1959.

I am deeply grateful for my history with the Associates, and I am moved by the opportunity to lead such an important group at USC, whose members inspire me with their Trojan Spirit and generosity at every turn. I thank you, and I look forward to the coming year as we continue to advance the USC Associates as the university’s premier academic support group.

A Message from Adam Bart

As the campus begins to fill with new and returning students, bright-eyed and eager to learn, it’s easy for me to pause and be reminded of our mission. As the university’s premier academic support group, we are dedicated to the advancement of knowledge, and we do an amazing amount of good for our students, faculty and researchers – and for our community. I am continually impressed by how freely you give of your time and resources, which help to enrich USC’s academics through scholarships and faculty awards university-wide. Thank you all for your continued generosity and support.

The Associates program has grown so much over the years, but we have not done it alone. For the last six years, we have had a true champion in our corner – our talented and courageous president, Jane Popovich. I, along with the rest of the office, was heartbroken at the recent news of Jane’s passing, but I am glad to have this opportunity to recognize the impact she and her family have had on USC. As a devoted Trojan, Jane exemplified what it means to have Trojan Spirit, and she led the USC Associates with incredible dedication to our mission. Our love and support goes out to her family.

I thank Jane for all she accomplished and sacrificed to make our beloved organization even stronger than she found it. I am truly honored to have had such an amazing, generous, kind and thoughtful friend, and I am humbled and grateful to have had the opportunity to share her vision for the USC Associates for these last six years. She will be deeply missed.

Thank you & Fight On!

Chairman Spotlight: Cynthia and Jan van Eck

USC is known for its entrepreneurial spirit and its openness to creative, interdisciplinary solutions. As a business student in the '80s, I can recall the distinct feeling of change in the air. I have a particularly vivid memory of Ronald Reagan visiting the campus. Anything seemed possible.

I feel that same excitement on campus today. Technology is changing our lives and upending business as never before, and true to tradition, USC has shown tremendous leadership in this area, developing programs to educate and challenge students to deal with this changing world.

When my husband, Jan, and I considered how we could best give back for the greatest impact, we were inspired by the spirit and success of one of USC’s boldest new endeavors – the USC Jimmy Iovine and Andre Young Academy for Arts, Technology and the Business of Innovation, which welcomed its first class of students in the fall of 2014.

Jan runs an investment management company – Van Eck Global – that was founded by his father in 1955 and now has more than $30 billion under management. We really wanted to help students understand the ways that technology has changed the art and science of investing. This is critical for anyone wanting to go into the field of asset management.

At USC, we found a perfect match for our giving objective. The Center for Investment Studies, housed at the top-ranked USC Marshall School of Business, offers students hands-on experience managing real money. Students in the center’s undergraduate and graduate Student Investment Fund Program manage a variety of funds with an array of benchmarks and investment objectives. And they report back to professional money managers, faculty and friends each year at their annual meeting.

The Center for Investment Studies is an excellent home for our gift because it embodies the entrepreneurship with which USC prepares its students to excel and lead. It also underscores why we give through the USC Associates. It is the group that advances the mission of the university, and we want to support and reward the kinds of academic programs that best prepare students for tomorrow.

I loved every part of my USC experience, from being rush chairman of my sorority, to producing Songfest, working in the Provost’s office for Dr. Pings, and being a member of Thematic Option.

My husband and I have been married for 23 years, and with four kids and a growing business to run, we are never bored! Our oldest son just finished his freshman year at UVA, where he played on the squash team. Our twins will be starting their junior year in high school, and our youngest will be in second grade.

One of our favorite family activities is to travel to interesting places, and we’re looking forward to a trip to Sicily this summer. I sit on a number of non-profit boards, am a trustee at my daughter’s school and, like most moms out there, find myself too often serving as the family taxi driver!

Because we live in New York, we don’t have the opportunity to enjoy most of the USC Associates events. But among our favorite activities when we are in Los Angeles are the USC Associates Football Picnics.

From our family to yours, we hope to see you there this year – to celebrate the spirit of education, innovation and giving.

A Gift for Student Investors
Van Eck Global Donates $3 Million to the USC Center for Investment Studies

Student investors at the USC Marshall School of Business benefited greatly this year from access to a significant source of new capital, which enhances an already robust family of funds at the Center for Investment Studies (CIS). Van Eck Global, an investment management firm based in New York, donated $3 million for a new student investment fund and educational travel scholarship in January 2015.

The Center for Investment Studies was created in 2001 with a gift from Larry Tashjian ’76 and his wife, Karen. It is a forum for students to acquire experiential learning, for faculty to conduct research, and for industry practitioners to share valuable insights.

Jan and Cynthia van Eck ’86 had been looking for the perfect opportunity to invest in USC, and the Center for Investment Studies provided students with the type of entrepreneurial and interdisciplinary experience that the van Ecks hoped to promote.

“We are very excited to forge strong links between Van Eck Global and the USC Marshall School of Business’ Center for Investment Studies,” said Jan van Eck, CEO, director and president of Van Eck Global. “We hope this gift will encourage Marshall students to pursue careers in the investment community.”

Van Eck Global is a leading manager of Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs), offering investors a wide range of equity and fixed-income alternatives. The total ETF market has grown to exceed $2 trillion globally.

“We are enormously grateful for Van Eck Global’s commitment in helping our students grow,” said Suh-Pyng Ku, professor of clinical finance and business economics and the director of CIS. “This is a very significant gift for our student investment fund program. I’m thrilled for the students’ expanded learning opportunities in ETF asset allocation across a wide range of asset classes.”

$1 million of the gift went toward creating the Van Eck Global Scholars Program, which will help student investors travel to New York and elsewhere to present their fund portfolio results. “With the Van Eck Global Scholars program, the company hopes to incentivize high-achieving students to pursue their dreams on a larger stage and consider launching their careers in New York City, which is the hub of the investment management community,” said Cynthia van Eck.

The Van Eck Global gift helps to advance the Campaign for the University of Southern California, a multi-year initiative to raise $6 billion or more in private philanthropy to help USC achieve its academic priorities and expand its positive contributions to the community and the world. USC Marshall has raised nearly $300 million of its $400 million goal in the campaign.

“With their visionary gift, the Van Eck organization is helping to grow USC Marshall’s reputation within the investment management community,” said James G. Ellis, dean of USC Marshall. “There is already a strong connection between our alumni and the investment community in New York, and the Van Eck Scholars program will make it even more robust for future generations of Trojans.”
New Board Members

Steven Nagelberg
Steven Nagelberg serves as the managing partner of Cambridge Medical Group and has 30 years of practice experience as a medical doctor specializing in orthopedic surgery. He graduated from Dartmouth College, obtained his medical degree from Mount Sinai School of Medicine, and completed his spine fellowship at Rancho Los Amigos Medical Center. He earned an MBA from the USC Marshall School of Business in 2009. Steven is a member of the Board of Counselors of USC Athletics. He and his wife, Jerri, have been married for 37 years and have two daughters, Elyse and Jodi. Jodi earned a BA from USC Dornsife in 2009, an MHA in health administration from USC Price in 2011, and an MD from the Keck School of Medicine of USC in 2015.

Jon Lash
Jon Lash is the former executive vice president and COO of Pardee Homes, where he oversaw the daily operations of the organization throughout California and Nevada. He has worked in the homebuilding and residential land-development industry for more than 28 years, and he has been involved in acquiring more than 80,000 residential lots and constructing more than 46,000 houses. Since leaving Pardee, Lash has started a new company called Western Land Strategies, which focuses on the valuation, entitlement and development of land. Lash earned a BS in business administration from USC Marshall in 1987. In addition to supporting academics at the university, he is also a committee member and Galen Founder.

Karen Wong
Karen Wong serves as a global project finance partner in the Los Angeles office of Milbank, Tweed, Hadley & McCloy LLP, an international law firm. She specializes in the energy and infrastructure sector and represents sponsors and financing parties in connection with the development, acquisition, financing and/or restructuring of utility scale energy and other infrastructure facilities in Asia and the Americas. Wong earned a BS in business administration from USC Marshall in 1982 and a JD from USC Gould in 1986. She is the immediate past board president of the USC Asian Pacific Alumni Association. Her husband, Scott W. Lee, earned a BS in business administration from USC Marshall in 1981.

USC Associates Award
for Excellence in Teaching

Oliver Mayer
Associate Professor of Dramatic Writing
USC School of Dramatic Arts

Oliver Mayer is an accomplished playwright whose work covers a wide range of thematic and cultural territory. His play Fortune Is a Woman was written for USC’s third-year MFA students, and the production was the centerpiece of the school’s 3-play repertoire in 2012. For the 2015 season, Professor Mayer’s Blood Match was adapted from Garcia Lorca’s Bodas de Sangre. Professor Mayer has acquired an academic idiom to teach undergraduates and graduate writers how to assess and evaluate plays – as well as how to write them. His teaching style immerses students in the world of plays both on the page and on stages around the city.

Melora Sundt
Executive Vice Dean and Professor of Clinical Education
USC Rossier School of Education

Since 1994, Professor Melora Sundt has consistently been among the most prolific, highly regarded and effective educators, and she is one of Rossier’s most sought-after faculty members for directing dissertations. Her leadership has resulted in the successful launch of two innovative graduate programs: the MAT@USC and the Global Executive Ed.D. Professor Sundt is always willing to orient, guide and mentor new members of the faculty, and she provides mentorship in course design and the innovative use of technologies to facilitate student learning.

Martin Gundersen
Professor of Electrical Engineering, Physics and Astronomy
USC Viterbi School of Engineering

Professor Martin Gundersen heads the Pulsed Power Research Group in USC Viterbi’s Department of Electrical Engineering – Electrophysics. He is a pioneer in the field of electrical pulsed power, miniaturized for defense, consumer, agriculture, biological and medical applications. His team is also exploring the potential for informal science education for the public, engineers, and scientists through film and television. Professor Gundersen holds seven U.S. patents and has won numerous research awards. He is a Fellow of the Optical Society of America, the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE), and he is the winner of the 2000 Kenneth J. Germeshausen Award.

USC Associates Award for Artistic Expression

Gail Peter Borden
Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and Associate Professor of Architecture
USC School of Architecture

Gail Peter Borden is a prolific author, an active architect and a dedicated teacher. Borden’s research and practice focus on the role of materiality and architecture in contemporary culture. Engaging simultaneously the newest computational fabrication techniques and the legacy of history, his work reinstates meaning into architecture. He serves as Principal of Borden Partnership, an architecture and design studio in Los Angeles. His teaching has been recognized with an ACSA New Faculty Teaching Award, and he is regarded as one of the top emerging architecture faculty. Borden’s deep dedication to students, to architecture and to USC knows no bounds.

Vanessa R. Schwartz
Professor of History, Art History and Critical Studies
USC Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences

Vanessa R. Schwartz directs the USC Visual Studies Research Institute and the Graduate Certificate program at USC Dornsife. A historian of modern visual culture, she was trained in modern European history with a concentration on France and urban culture. She pioneered “visual culture,” a new field of scholarly inquiry that requires a deep knowledge of art history and film studies as well as history. She writes with erudition and flair about panoramic vision, urban life, boulevard culture and the popular press in Paris. She was honored with a Mellon graduate mentoring award and received the Raubenheimer Award, USC Dornsife’s highest faculty recognition.

Peter Erskine
Professor of Practice in Jazz Studies and Director of Drumset Studies
USC Thornton School of Music

Peter Erskine began playing the drums at the age of four and has since been described as one of the world’s most revered and iconic jazz drummers. He won two Grammy Awards, was voted “Best Jazz Drummer of the Year” ten times by Modern Drummer magazine, was a member of the seminal fusion band Weather Report, and has toured the world with artists ranging from Steely Dan and Joni Mitchell to Pat Metheny and the Yellowjackets. His prolific career includes performing on 600 albums and film scores, and the release of 50 albums under his own name or as co-leader.
